Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions, which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants, fumes, smokes and snuffs and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and will cure catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. A trial size will be mailed for 10 cents. All druggists sell the 50c. size. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., N.Y.

The Balm cures without pain, does not irritate or cause sneezing. It spreads itself over an irritated and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation.

THE TIME OF HER LIFE

By CONSTANCE D'ARCY MACKAY

Copyright, 1906, by K. A. Whitehead

One morning, when Billy and I were lingering over our rolls and coffee, Betty came in with a tragic air and an open letter in her hand.

"Listen to this!" she exclaimed "Eleanor Cuyler is coming to New York to visit her aunt, and she says she simply must see us because she's always wanted to visit the 'shores of Bohemia!'"

"The shores of what?" said Billy. "I'm sure there's nothing Bohemian about us."

"That's just it," wailed Betty, "but Miss Cuyler doesn't see it that way. She's daft about people who 'do things,' and she says she never met any, so she begs that she may come to dinner some night, quite informally, and be one of us. She thinks that because Kate writes and you're an artist and we all live in a little flat—I mean apartment—we are—well, we are queer and unconventional."

"Who is this Eleanor Cuyler?" said Billy, with a frown.

"She's a Philadelphia girl Kate and I met when we were in the mountains last summer. She was awfully nice to us in ever so many ways, and now it's our turn to do something for her. It's no use suggesting the matinee or a luncheon. Eleanor's rich as Croesus and tired of all that, and there's nothing else we can afford. Oh, I don't see what we're going to do!" And Betty puckered her brows in despair.

"Do," cried Billy. "Why, it's as plain as day! Satisfy her craving for the unconventional! If we're not Bohemians, we can at least put up a good imitation of the real thing. We can ask the Englishman, Harry Rockminster—he'll add a continental flavor. And there's Perry Dashwood; he can sing stein songs better than any one I ever knew. We'll get Cynthia to come and recite, and Worthington to bring his violin. They can pretend they're professionals. Cynthia will be an actress just starting on her career, and Worthington a struggling musician—'struggling' is the right touch, isn't it? And—let's see—this is Monday. Write and invite Miss Cuyler for Wednesday evening. Bohemians aren't supposed to give much notice when they ask people to their parties." And Billy looked over at me and laughed.

While Betty was jubilantly writing her note I went to explain things to Aunt Pattie. Aunt Pattie has mothered us ever since we were children, and nothing we do ever surprises her, so she fell in with our plan at once. "But I couldn't be a Bohemian if I tried," she declared. "I wouldn't know how to act, and I'd make you all miserable and myself too. You can easily excuse my absence."

"But you'll miss all the fun," I objected.

Aunt Pattie's eyes twinkled. "Oh, I mean to be there!" she cried. "Since we have no maid I'm going to serve the dinner myself."

In vain we all protested, coaxed, commanded. Aunt Pattie was firm in insisting that as Miss Cuyler had never seen her it could make no possible difference. Yet somehow it did to me, for I could imagine with what horror my Englishman might look on such proceedings. Even after I had written to him and explained the circumstances I was tormented by misgivings, for, although he didn't know it, his good opinion mattered more to me than anything else in the world!

All Wednesday Betty and I worked like majors. We had always rather prided ourselves on the artistic arrangement of our little parlor. Now, in order to make it look Bohemian, we had banked it with all the bizarre and startling things we could lay our hands on. Billy's delicate water color sketches were jostled by flamboyant posters, theatrical photographs adorned the mantel, and sundry pipes and ash trays littered the table. It certainly looked queer; but, as Betty and I confessed to ourselves, we didn't. Betty was demure in a gray gown, and I wore my black net. I was just fastening one of Harry Rockminster's roses in my hair when the bell rang.

"There she is!" cried Betty hysterically. "Now, don't act as if anything unusual were happening!"

Eleanor Cuyler was enthusiastic in her greeting, and she was still telling of her joy in seeing us when we crossed the threshold of the parlor. At sight of the room she smothered a little gasp, which showed that our work had not been in vain. Then Billy came forward, and the loose blouse and soft tie which he wore for the occasion made him look as if he had stepped straight out of the Latin quarter. But Miss Cuyler wasn't any more surprised at his appearance than he was at hers. Somehow neither Betty nor I had told him what a beauty Miss Cuyler was—a childish little beauty with a fluff of golden hair and deep blue eyes that opened very wide when anything astonished her.

Perry Dashwood and Harry Rockminster came early, but there wasn't a sign of Cynthia and Worthington.

"They're half an hour late already," said Betty to me in an aside. "What on earth can be keeping them? I'm afraid the dinner will be spoiled."

Something of our uneasiness reached Billy, and he turned abruptly to Betty. "I really think we'd better not wait for the others," he said. "They may be quite late. You never can tell what may happen on the shores of Bohemia."

But we were hardly seated before we heard the turn of Worthington's latchkey and the swish of Cynthia's skirt down the hall. She made a dramatic pause at the dining room door and looked perfectly dazzling in a crimson Spanish costume, glittering with spangles.

"I hope you won't mind my coming in costume," she said. "We were kept late at rehearsal, and there wasn't time to change. I met Worthington on the stairs," she continued nonchalantly. "He'll be in in a moment. He's a musician, Miss Cuyler, and you know what uncertain hours musicians are forced to keep, especially when they are young and struggling."

Cynthia moved toward her chair with sinuous grace. She said afterward that the Spanish costume had entered into her blood, and she wasn't responsible for anything she did. Neither was Worthington, for he wore a peculiar, shabby black coat and carried his violin under his arm. But his crowning glory was his hair, or perhaps I should say his wig, which was very long and straight.

"'The Music Master,' by Jove!" ejaculated Harry Rockminster.

Yet not once did a triumphant gleam illumine the eyes of Signor Worthington. To this day I've always wondered how he managed to keep that dreamy, abstracted expression. Of course I knew I could count on Cynthia and Worthington, but I never knew I could count on them to such an extent as that. Eleanor Cuyler was delighted. She looked at them and listened to them in open eyed wonder as if they were beings from another world. And all my fears of what Harry Rockminster would think were set at rest when he whispered, "I say, isn't this a stunning lark!"

And now if Aunt Pattie didn't act too much like a lady our Bohemian dinner would be a complete success, but one false note would ruin everything. I toyed with the grape fruit as long as possible. Then I rang the bell. As I did so I kept my eyes fixed on Billy. He sat opposite the kitchen door and would be the first to see Aunt Pattie. The kitchen door creaked, swung open, and the expression on Billy's face signaled me that something had happened.

"Aunty," he burst out and then checked himself.

From behind me came a soft voice with the pleasant slurred accent of the south. "I reckon yo's 'sprised to see me, Mars' Billy! Yo' didn't know I was to cook de dinnar, did yo'?"

I turned and beheld Aunt Pattie! And yet not Aunt Pattie! For the face that beamed from beneath a bandanna turban was as black as the ace of spades!

To Miss Cuyler this apparition was nothing more than a loquacious dusky servant, but the rest of us were in ecstasies of mirth. We have vowed ever since that we owed the whole success of the evening to Aunt Pattie, for not only was the dinner deliciously cooked and splendidly served, but it went with a whirl. Harry Rockminster was never more brilliant in his life and told stories of marvelous escapades in which he had taken part. Cynthia recited "Lasca" with true dramatic fervor. Between courses Worthington played snatches on his violin, and we all sang songs—songs for which Perry made up funny impromptu choruses. The men smoked, and through the blue haze shone the radiant face of Miss Cuyler.

When dinner was over she leaned back in her chair with a little sigh. "It's just as I fancied Bohemia would be," she declared. "Oh, what fun you all must have gathering round the table this way every evening. Of course it's just a common occurrence to you, but I shall never forget it. Never! And I can't thank you enough for this glimpse of it."

Billy said she thanked him fervently again when he saw her to her carriage. "I've had the time of my life," she reiterated, "the time of my life!"

"Well, she wasn't the only one," said Worthington. He had taken off his wig and was mopping his brow while the rest of us sat about the dining room table nibbling at the remains of dessert and teasing Aunt Pattie to have something more substantial than lobster salad and a cup of coffee.

"Miss Cuyler did seem to appreciate it," said Cynthia.

"Appreciate!" cried Billy. "I think it's we who ought to appreciate her coming! Why, just to look at her is a feast! She has exactly the kind of eyes I want for my 'Queen Titania.'"

"Why don't you ask her to pose for it, then?" suggested Cynthia slyly.

"I have asked," answered Billy quite simply, "and we are going to begin tomorrow."

"Whiff!" sniffed Betty. "I smell orange blossoms!" And under cover of the laughter Harry turned to me.

"Miss Cuyler's had the time of her life, Billy's had the time of his, and there's just one thing wanting to give me the time of mine." His lips were smiling, but there was no mistaking the look in his eyes.

"I'd hate to spoil your evening by saying 'No,'" I whispered back. And then, although I was so happy, I had an absurd desire to cry, and if Billy hadn't suddenly interrupted with a toast to the shores of Bohemia goodness knows what might have happened!

Trout's Narrow Escape.

A correspondent of the London Field relates that he shot a flying heron that had been fishing in the river Colne at Uxbridge, and as the bird fell there dropped out of its mouth a trout nearly one-half pound in weight. The fish was alive, though scored on the back. A keeper procured a live bait can, filled it with water and put the trout into it. After a minute or so the fish gained strength. In a few hours it seemed quite resuscitated and apparently none the worse for its narrow escape from death. It was accordingly returned to the river to recover itself fully.

Why Hair Turns Gray.

The color of hair depends on little granules, which can be seen if the hair be examined under a powerful microscope. Sometimes the hair may become white in a night. Brown-Sequard tells us that when he was forty-five years old his beard turned white in two days. This took place when he was perfectly well and without any especial cause. Sometimes, however, sorow or illness produces the change earlier in life than it would usually take place. As to the cause, some have said that the hair becomes filled with small air particles which make it look gray. Others have said that the outer part of the hair becomes altered so that it is like ground glass and you cannot see the color. But a man of the name of Metchnikoff tells us that the real reason is because small movable bodies in the hair devour the grains of coloring matter and move them to the root of the hair. Sometimes poisons in disease or some results of sorrow bring about an effect upon these small migrating bodies (cells), causing them to become active in the above fashion. That is said to be the reason why the hair grows gray.—St. Nicholas.

Geographical Unity.

There are two tremendous moments in crossing the United States from east to west by way of Chicago, Omaha and Ogden. The first is when the bluffs of the Missouri suddenly dwindle away and the prairie rolls into sight with its ocean of tall corn, islanded with embowered homesteads, as if one swelling movement of the sea had been divinely caught and petrified and made fertile. And the second of these significant moments, more majestically pregnant with hidden meanings than the naked glories of Niagara or the arrogant cliffs of Yosemite, is when the ravines of the Sierra Nevada, with their ever green beauty of pine trees, broaden out on the valley of Sacramento and the hills recede beyond that magnificent plain. There and then you realize the perpetual and indissoluble relation of highland to lowland and perceive in the United States a more wonderful geographical unity than you might behold anywhere in Europe, where there is more variety and less majestic space.—Percy Vincent Donovan in Sunset Magazine.

Tiaras Made Over.

It may be realized by purchasers of diamond tiaras and the like that styles in settings change almost as frequently as in a woman's hat, and every other year at least must see the precious diadem rebuilt. This adds to original cost, for no self respecting jeweler changes the setting of a costly piece of jewelry without adding a few new stones to the first amount, thereby increasing its value. Of course famous crowns, with associations attached, that have recently come into the possession of very rich Americans remain as first designed, for even an American shows some sentiment when it costs him a fortune to indulge in rich historic jewels, but otherwise diamond and pearl and emerald tiaras are constantly made over.—Boston Herald.

Lightning Conductors.

The efficiency of lightning conductors is fairly well attested by the freedom of the great cathedrals and tall spired churches from injury. St. Paul's and Westminster abbey, for example, are well protected and serve to safeguard a large area surrounding them. Experience in the navy is to the same effect. In former days, before conductors were employed, there was an annual charge for damage to his majesty's ships by lightning. Between 1810 and 1815, according to Sir W. Snow Harris, thirty-five sails of the line and thirty-five frigates and smaller vessels were completely disabled. That item has now vanished from the votes.—London Telegraph.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Is a powerful, invigorating tonic, imparting health and strength to particular to the organs distinctly feminine. The local womanly health is so intimately related to the general health that when diseases of the delicate womanly organs are cured the whole body gains in health and strength. For weak and sickly women who are "worn-out," "run-down" or debilitated, especially for women who work in store, office or schoolroom, who sit at the typewriter or sewing machine, or bear heavy household burdens, and for nursing mothers, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has proven a priceless benefit because of its health-restoring and strength-giving powers.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, chorea, or St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womanly organs. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Cures obstinate cases. "Favorite Prescription" is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate cases of "female weakness," painful periods, irregularities prolapsus or falling of the pelvic organs, weak back, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration.

Dr. Pierce's medicines are made from harmless but efficient medical roots found growing in our American forests. The Indians knew of the marvelous curative value of some of these roots and imparted that knowledge to some of the friendlier whites, and gradually some of the more progressive physicians came to test and use them, and ever since they have grown in favor by reason of their superior curative virtues and their safe and harmless qualities.

Your druggists sell the "FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION" and also that famous alterative, blood purifier and stomach tonic, the "GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY." Write to Dr. Pierce about your case. He is an experienced physician and will treat your case as confidential and without charge for correspondence. Address him at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., of which he is chief consulting physician.

Thoughts on the Fire.

What a change has been wrought in our beloved city of San Francisco! There is magic in the name and the same old ring in the voice when we speak of it but what a transformation.

"High towers, fair temples, goodly theatres,
Strong walls, rich porches, princely palaces.
Fine streets, brave houses, sacred sepulchres,
Sure gates, sweet gardens, stately galleries
All these, (Oh pity!) now are turned to dust."

But the love that was infused in the hearts of her countless acquaintances will raise her up. Soon San Francisco will again be the home and abiding place of the thousands who have been forced to flee to other hearths or to take refuge in the beautiful park destined to be at once a neccessity as well as a luxury to her people. There is every reason why San Francisco will quickly recover and be herself. First of all her possibilities—commercial and financial—have been well demonstrated in the past. Then, too, her cosmopolitanism made life there unique and attractive. History will repeat itself.

Our people will show the kind of stuff they are made of by rising above their misfortune. The key-note to this ultimate spirit has been pity and generosity. No one will be embittered, for their experience bought out the fact that there is an understanding of fellow feeling and brotherly love in this land. If it has lain dormant, it has awakened now.

The conflagration has illustrated how uncertain are the fortunes of cities and men. Nothing could be more of a contrast than San Francisco before and after the fire. San Francisco was the proud possessor of costly and magnificent structures whose archicture no other city surpassed. The stores and business houses were models. The hotels and restaurants world-famous, the women next to Paris in point of style and dress, the opera in proportion more liberally patronized than by any city in America—of all these things San Francisco rightfully boasted.

The fire robbed her of them all yet there is still much left of which to be proud. There is the unsurpassable harbor, the commanding position by the Golden Gate, the rich East beyond, the substantial West behind, the unshaken confidence of all her people.

Should not be Unreasonably Criticised.

California enjoys many advantages and is blessed with superiority as to climate and beauty over many of her sister States and although now in the throes of a great grief and calamity the State must not be unreasonably criticised or feared because of the earthquake we have experienced.

Earthquakes are by no means every-day occurrences here. On the contrary, there never has been one like this latest temblor and other shakes have occurred only at intervals of ten and twenty years and have done comparatively little damage. In the East the ravages of the cyclones and blizzards are common and frequent occurrences. Fires, of course, are liable to occur any where at any time and are quite as disastrous whether caused by man or nature.

San Francisco has been very fortunate in the past. She has steadily progressed and enjoyed an uninterrupted peace and security. Calamity is liable to strike any where and in many forms, but one is as secure in California as in any place in the world. The recent misfortune should not retard her popularity in any way when one stops to calmly consider.

Thief Loots Cash Register.

The business place of Lewis & Cummings was entered Sunday night by a thief who looted the cash register and till. Fortunately there was only $3 in the register at the time. The robber got away with that amount and made good his escape without detection. He gained access to the shop through a rear window.

BAD CONDITION OF LOCAL BUILDINGS.

Earthquake Neccessitates Much Repairing and Overhauling on Structures.

Many buildings throughout the valley, particularly those of stone and concrete suffered severely from the shake-up they received in the earthquake and a large force of men has been at work repairing them and making them secure for occupancy. The Clewe building is being partially torn down and braced with frame work, and there is talk of making the bank building a one-story structure.

The Adler building has had new timbers put into it and is otherwise being repaired. During the rain Monday night, while the rear part of the store was still without a roof, the Hotz stock was somewhat damaged by water.

Many buildings between here and Glen Ellen collapsed, among them the stone structure on the Home property this side of Chauvet's and the stone winery at Madrone on the property of the California Wine Association.

Most of the chimneys of the dwelling houses are still down as there are not enough masons to repair the damages. As a result people hesitate to build fires and are putting up with many inconveniences.

Duncan McKinlay Starts for Stricken Cities.

When Congressman Duncan E. McKinlay heard of the disaster which befell San Francisco and Santa Rosa, he did all in his power to secure a government appropriation and started immediately from Washington to give personal assistance.

The following telegram has been received in Santa Rosa from Senator Perkins:

Washington, D. C., April 22d—Hon. J. P. Overton, Mayor, Judge Burnett and others: McKinlay left for California Friday evening and the Government has appropriated $2,000,000 and millions from other cities are on the way for relief of sufferers from earthquake in California. Secretary of War will give instructions to assist destitute people of your city. I extend to the people of your city and California my heartfelt sympathy in the great calamity that has befallen us. GEORGE C. PERKINS.

Back From Mexico

Editor H. H. Granice returned in haste from the City of Mexico arriving here Monday night after hearing most startling reports in regard to Sonoma and the earthquake. It was rumored that this town had sunk out of sight and nothing could be seen of it except the roof tops and church steeples.

The first news of the earthquake reached Mexico Wednesday the 18th and the entire press party was thrown into great excitement as all had families and friends here. Through the courtesy of the S. P. Company the excursion train was given a through right of way and the return trip to Oakland was made in three days and a half.

Ye Editor was delighted to find that no one had been injured here.

Two telegrams were en route but were not received at Sonoma until after he himself arrived.

Left Large Legacy.

Mrs. Hannah Appleton has been bequeathed $100,000 by her deceased uncle John Spring of San Francisco. Besides remembering other relatives and his servants he also left many charitable institutions in the East amounts aggregating $10,000. Mrs. Appleton returned from San Francisco Sunday, where she has been settling up her affairs.

In Town.

George Sessions, a prominent mining man en route to South America, has been here on a short visit to his aunt, Mrs. Enos.

Mr. Sessions was raised by Mrs. Enos who had not seen him for over twenty years.

Rheumatic Pains Relived.

The quick relief from rheumatic pain afforded by Chamberlain's Pain Balm has surprised and delighted thousands of sufferers It makes rest and sleep possible. A great many have been permanently cured of rheumatism by the use of this liniment. For sale by L. S. Simmons.

Miller Telegraphs Aid To Santa Rosa.

W. S. Miller of this place, who is Secretary of the Standard Oil Company on the Pacific Coast and at present is in New York City, has telegraphed to Lee Brothers & Co. of Santa Rosa authorizing them to subscribe $5,000 to the relief committee at that place in behalf of the Standard Oil Company.

GENERAL CONDITIONS IN STRICKEN CITIES.

San Francisco and Santa Rosa are Being Generously Aided and the Work of Restoration is On.

Considering the calamity that befell San Francisco and Santa Rosa the general conditions in both cities are good. The homeless are being cared for and liberal contributions of money, food and clothing have been pouring in from all over the world. There never was such response to the distressed and this has buoyed up the spirits and hopes of the greatest sufferers until now the people are looking forwards instead of backwards and are talking of the Greater San Francisco and the New Santa Rosa.

The military has been withdrawn from San Francisco's downtown district and people may come and go now without interference or the formality of passes. Citizens are no longer required to work, but men are being hired in vast numbers and all laborers are requested to remain in the city, where they can command good wages.

All tottering buildings and dangerous walls have been torn down and the debris fastly cleared away. Some of the street cars are now running and the water mains are being rapidly repaired.

There is little or no sickness in San Francisco and reports to the contrary are said to be maliciously false.

Property-owners will rebuild at once. Where old frames can be utilized the buildings will be put in shape at once and fresh material is arriving in large quantities for new structures on many well-known sites.

Very few big firms will go out of business. There will be great activity in realty and the price of property will steadily advance if we may judge from present reports.

The insurance companies all declare that they will pay every dollar of insurance and the banks will open for business as soon as the condition of the vaults permit.

Those who require immediate help will get every possible aid and the future looks wonderfully encouraging

At Santa Rosa conditions are much better than was expected. There is little distress and what there is will not last, as liberal contributions are pouring in every day. Fifteen thousand dollars has been appropriated for these sufferers from the general fund.

Santa Rosa will be rebuilt more beautifully than ever. Fourth street is being cleared and cars will be loaded up with the debris which will be disposed of on the outskirts of the town.

NEWS FROM SANTA ROSA.

All records in the Hall of Records are safe.

Con Shea will rebuild twice as big and twice as good.

The courts have continued all matters on their calendars for two weeks from April 18.

The Supervisors have decided to erect temporary county buildings on the plaza lawn.

The Savings Bank which formerly occupied a one-story building, will be rebuilt and the new structure will be a four-story office building to cost $250,000.

The Court House is practically ruined. The new Masonic Temple, the fine public library, the big brewery, the shoe factory, two theatres, three of the finest hotels, a score of office buildings and stores all gone. They resemble a monstrous rubbish pile. Five steel vaults are all that remain of the banks.

The mask ball has been postponed.

READY TO AID THE TEMBLOR REFUGEES.

Woman's Club and Catholic Ladies Assist Local Relief Committee in Providing for Needy.

A local relief committee was organized in this valley as soon as the necessity became apparent and a substantial fund was collected for the refugees from the fire and earthquake calamity. Tents were erected in the Plaza to shelter the needy and there were also several families housed in a dwelling near the Engler place. All who came were cared for and food and clothing provided in liberal quantities.

The Sonoma Valley Woman's Club collected a quantity of clothing and appointed a committee to assort and distribute it to the sufferers. The club was assisted by the Catholic ladies who also provided much clothing, which was collected at the suggestion of the priest from the Sonoma parishioners.

Mrs. G. H. Hotz, Mrs. R. A. Poppe, Mrs. W. Nolan and Mrs. L. H. Green were the ladies having the matter in charge for the club and church.

Chimneys Must Be Officially Inspected.

Following in the footsteps of other cities who as a precaution against fires require the inspection of all chimneys, the City Trustees have posted notices announcing that J. E. Poppe of the Fire Department has been appointed inspector here. All property owners whose chimneys were damaged will not be paid any insurance in case of fire unless they have a certificate showing that their chimneys were secure.

Thomas H. Baines, the real estate man, was a Southern Pacific passenger for Napa last Tuesday.

M. F. Mullen, the well-known station agent here, is taking a rest. J. L. Harvey of San Jose is relieving him.

Harry and Leo Baines went to Santa Rosa the fore part of the week to view the ruins of the business portion of that city.

J. A. Matthews, an up-to-date and first-class barber, has located at the El Verano Villa barber shop and is now ready for business.

Antonio Franzalli of Port Costa has bought out the saloon of Felici Cleriei and is now ready for business with a first-class stock of wet goods.

Hugh Chance of San Francisco came up the fore part of the week after going though a terrible experience and fighting the flames for several days.

El Verano is now taking care of a large number of San Francisco people who were burned out in that city. Numbers of refugees continue to arrive daily on the S. P. train.

Mr. Miller and family, who several years ago ran the Union Hotel in Sonoma, are among the San Francisco refugees in this place. They arrived here Tuesday evening and registered at the Bellevue Hotel.

The Woman's Club has established an employment office in Lutgen's store where all in need of work may register and all who want help can apply. There will be no fees whatever and the people out of employment may find something to do in Sonoma.

"HOME" BUILDINGS BADLY DAMAGED.

State Institution Suffers Considerable from Temblor and Part of it Unsafe For Use.

The California Home for Feeble Minded Children at Eldridge was badly damaged from the effects of the earthquake and its brick walls evidenced the terrible twisting it received. It is marvelous that there were no fatalities as at Agnews but it is said that the children were easily pacified.

Two of the main cottages of the institution were rendered unsafe for use and as a result they have been temporarily abandoned. This makes it necessary to crowd the patients considerably but repairs will be made at once.

Dr. Dawson states that there are provisions enough to last two weeks and no shortage is feared.

PERSONALS.

Geo. Daunt was over from Petaluma Wednesday.

Mrs. Martyr is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Lewis.

Tom Lentz has been visiting here from Pennsgrove.

Mrs. Mullen has been visiting her parents Capt. and Mrs. Johnson.

Capt and Mrs. Ward were Kenwood visitors here one day this week.

H. J. Chauvet, the well known wine man, was a visitor to Petaluma this week.

John Serres drove his bus load of guests from the Bellevue into town Thursday.

The Fraser home was badly damaged by the earthquake and a quantity of bric-a-brac broken.

A feature of Sunday morning's services at the Congregational church will be a tenor and alto duet.

Mr. and Mrs. Rowell have been spending some time at Locust Grove. Mr. Rowell teaches at the Lowell High School in San Francisco.

The crop outlook for hay, grain and fruit in Sonoma Valley is very flattering.

A Card to the Public.

I wish to state to the public that owing to the damage done my office by the earthquake I was compelled to remove it to my residence on Broadway until the building could be replastered.

I wish to deny that I will leave Sonoma, but on the contrary am here to stay.

I wish also to deny that I left Forestville owing bills. In regard to this I wish to say that the statement is absolutely false, and that I have a recommendation from almost every citizen of that town to the contrary.

I have been in Sonoma about fifteen months and I defy any man to show where I have not paid my bills promptly and been an honest citizen.

I can be found at my residence on Broadway until my office is again in order. DR. BYRON.

With All My Heart

By EDITH M. DOANE

Copyright, 1906, by E. C. Parcells

A lunge, a jolt, and the elevated train halted reluctantly beside the station platform. Through the softly whirling snowflakes outside the electric lights blinked drully. "Ninth street!" yelled the conductor, jerking open the door.

A young man sprang to the platform, closely followed by a girl muffled to her ears in soft, warm furs. Burying her face in her big, fluffy muff, she refused his guiding arm and walked briskly down the snow drifted steps but into the white, whirling world in the street below.

"Isn't it a lark?" she said gayly. Her eyes were dancing. She turned a lovely face, flushed with cold and excitement, toward the six feet of masculine appreciation beside her. "Isn't it glorious?"

"Beautiful!" His eyes were on her face.

"Don't you love it?"

"With all my heart!" hummed Gordon Huston fervently.

"The first snowstorm is alluring, fascinating. Words are so hopelessly inadequate"—

"They are," he agreed approvingly.

"I am speaking of the storm," icily.

"Of course"—his voice was that of injured innocence—"the storm. What else?"

She struggled for stern disapproval. Then their eyes met, and they both laughed.

"To think of Aunt Clara's headache at the last moment."

"Blessed headache!"

"And of her actually consenting to my coming alone."

"It's dreadful," he murmured, "but I find it in my heart to forgive her."

Then, being very young and exceedingly foolish, they laughed again.

The street lamps flared in ghostly succession and her furs were white with snow as they pushed through the soft, smothering storm.

"Tell me"—in spite of himself his voice was unsteady—"you really did care about coming."

"Oh, yes," lightly; "I have always wanted to see the Cafe Bellard."

"There was no other reason?"

She looked at him in apparent surprise, though her eyes danced with mischief. "Other reason?" she echoed. Suddenly her mood changed. With a quick little gesture she laid her hand on his arm.

"Don't, Gordon," she said beseechingly. "We have only a few hours together. Don't"—nervously—"say things to spoil our evening, Gordon."

"As you wish." His tone was courteous, but full of coldness. So his great love for her was but a thing that would "spoil" her evening.

They had reached the corner now and in silence they crossed the street to the great cafe, whose lights flared but invitingly through the whirling snow.

Inside the strains of a Hungarian band floated dreamily through the crowded rooms, lights blazed, there was the hum of many voices, and the scent of tobacco smoke clung to the air. In a corner they found a table that commanded a view of the laughing, chattering cosmopolitan crowd.

"I am so glad you thought of bringing me here," said Molly shyly, abashed by his studied silence. "It is like the places on the continent. There is one in Paris, in the Rue de Rivoli, that I wish you could see."

"I will look it up next month."

She gave a perceptible start, which was balm to his wounded feelings.

"Next month!" she repeated, with a mournful attempt at unconcern. "I didn't know you were going abroad."

"The firm has offered me the management of a branch house it is opening in Paris."

"Of course you will go. It is natural. You will be very happy there."

The last strains of a dreamy waltz died softly away. The applause leaped from table to table, then subsided as the opening bars of a gay little French love song floated through the rooms.

"Is that what you think?" he said earnestly, dropping his voice and leaning across the table. "Then for once you are wrong. I shall never be happy anywhere without you"—determinedly—"as my wife."

The catchy little French song swung gayly on; a musician began to sing the words to the accompaniment of the violins; first one voice, then another caught up the refrain. "With all my heart, with all my heart," echoed through the crowded rooms.

"That is it," he said simply. "'With all my heart;' that is how I love you—'With all my heart.'"

"Don't say anything more," said the girl, almost passionately. "Don't. The more you say now the worse it will be for me by and by when I have to think. And—and—it is all quite impossible."

"But why, dear?" He had grown a little pale in his turn and regarded her ruefully.

"Why is it impossible?" His mind rushed backward with a lightning stroke to the rumors that had come from Bar Harbor in the summer time. In one quick flash he understood.

"It is Morton?" he said bitterly.

"I have promised to marry him," she returned in a low tone—so low that he had to bend to hear it. "Do not be angry with me. I thought—I did know"—

A light broke over [illegible] not mean—you [illegible] little?"

[illegible] dismay. "You [illegible] and care—you do care—a little?" he questioned eagerly.

She picked up a spoon and twisted it nervously in her fingers. "That does not matter," she said gravely, "because—I have given my word."

"But you will break that wretched promise?"

He looked steadily at her, and she returned the gaze as steadily. "No," she said, very sweetly and gravely; "I cannot break my word. He depends on me utterly. He has no thought except for my happiness. He is so good. He has never cared for any other woman. If I should desert him it would break his heart."

Gordon leaned forward, his elbows on the table, his face between his hands, and regarded her with hurt miserable eyes.

"And you prefer to break mine," he said gloomily.

"I have promised," repeated Molly quietly, with a little wan attempt at a smile.

"How does it happen that I am allowed to have you for even these few hours?" he went on moodily.

"He is away on business," Molly answered, her eyes intent upon the adjoining room. "I told him you were coming over from Philadelphia, and he said he was sorry not to see you—that he must be away."

Gordon sat buried in unhappy reverie.

"Do look at that girl just sitting down at the table by the door!" exclaimed Molly suddenly. "Did you ever see such a hat? There must be a special kind of bird to grow such stupendous plumes."

Gordon turned. "She completely overshadows her companion," he said with forced interest.

The newcomer settled herself in her chair and moved the amazing hat to one side.

"By Jove!" exclaimed Gordon, with a low whistle.

He glanced quickly at Molly. Two red spots like danger signals burned on either cheek; her wrathful eyes were fastened on the girl's companion. He looked up, their eyes met, and Molly stared at him with no hint of recognition. He half rose to his feet; then a hot wave of color suffused his face as he turned sullenly to his companion.

Amazement, indignation, relief, chased themselves in quick succession over Molly's face. She met Gordon's eyes and her own fell before their message.

The strains of the violins died softly away; the crowd thrilled with enthusiasm. "Encore, encore!" they cried, and again the gay little French song echoed through the rooms. "With all my heart," swung the refrain.

Gordon leaned over the table. "Say it," he whispered.

The delicate color dyed her cheeks crimson; he bent nearer.

"With all my heart," she whispered.

Rheumatism Makes Life Miserable

A happy home is the most valuable possession that is within reach of mankind, but you cannot enjoy its comforts if you are suffering from rheumatism. You throw aside business cares when you enter your home and you can be relieved from those rheumatic pains also by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm. One application will give you relief and its continued use for a short time will bring about a permanent cure. For sale by L. S. Simmons.

Don't Put Off

for to-morrow what you can do to-day. If you don't put off buying a bottle of Ballard's Snow Liniment when that pain comes you won't have any. Buy a bottle to-day. A positive cure for rheumatism, Burns, Cuts, Sprains, Contracted Muscles, etc. T. S. Graham, Prairie Grove, Ark., writes: "I wish to thank you for the good results I received from Snow Liniment. It positively cured me of Rheumatism after others had failed." Sold by L. S. Simmons.

Dear Old Mother!

In the hurry and bustle of this busy life those dear old mothers, our best friends and champions, who gave us the very best years of their lives, who stood between us and all harm, who would willingly have laid down their lives for us, who in times of sickness were always our ministering angels—constantly at our bedside, responding willingly to every beck and call, attending with more than loving kindness to our every want and need—are too often forgotten and seldom accorded the loving attention which is their due, and when the grim reaper takes them from us we, for the first time, realize in anguish, sorrow and regret what the loss of a mother really means. It means more than all the other things of earth. All the riches of the universe could not compensate, and in all the whole wide world there is no other who can fill her place. Of all the beauty with which the world is embellished the most beautiful is the mother, and to her every human being truly owes a world of homage.—Papillion Times.

Good Judgment

is the essential characteristic of men and women. Invaluable to good business men and necessary to house-wives. A woman shows good judgment when she buys White's Cream Vermifuge for her baby. The best worm medicine ever offered to mothers. Many indeed are the sensible mothers who write expressing their gratitude for the good health of their children, which they owe to the use of White's Cream Vermifuge. Sold by L. S. Simmons.

Omens of Bricklayers.

Bricklayers believe it is unlucky to lay the top brick at the north corner of a building. Some of them would lose a day's pay rather than imperil their future by doing such a piece of work. A bricklayer often bricks up in the hollow of a wall a horseshoe with a cent tied to it. This he does for good luck. To lay the first and last brick of any building but a church brings good luck to the bricklayer. Churches are the luckiest buildings to work on; theaters are the unluckiest. It is bad luck to break a trowel.—New York Press.

Corroborative.

"This," exclaimed the orator, "is a decadent nation! As before the fall of Rome everything was rotten, so today in our erstwhile fair land everything"—Just here an egg struck him fairly. His nostrils dilated.

"I desire," he continued, "before retiring to add that this egg is corroborative evidence."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Case For Sympathy.

"I have three children, who are the very image of myself," said Jones enthusiastically.

"I pity the youngest," returned Brown quietly.

"Why?" asked Jones.

"Because he is the one who will have to resemble you the longest," said Brown.—Tit-Bits.

Grip Quickly Knocked Out.

"Some weeks ago during the severe winter weather both my wife and and myself contracted severe colds which speedily developed into the worst kind of la grippe with all its miserable symptoms," says Mr. J. S. Egleston of Maple Landing, Iowa. "Knees and joints aching, muscles sore, head stopped up, eyes and nose running, with alternate spells of chills and fever. We began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, aiding the same with a double dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, and by its liberal use soon completely knocked out the grip." Sold by L. S. Simmons.

Desperate.

Aunt Ruth—'Tis sad to grow old Her Niece—How much would you give to be as young as I? Aunt Ruth—I would almost submit to being as foolish.

Unexpected.

"Can your wife make as good pies as your mother did?"

"Yes, indeed. Mother uses my wife's recipe."—Cleveland Free Press.

Assistant Fool Makers.

It doesn't take much of a girl to make a fool of any man. Nature did so much.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Just Because

your cough is only in the throat and does not trouble you now don't think that it needs no attention. When it has not had much of a start is the time to check it. The slightest cough easily leads to Pneumonia, Bronchitis and Consumption. A bottle of Ballard's Horehound Syrup will cure that cough. The price puts it within reach of all. Sold by L. S. Simmons.

A Protest.

The Lion—The leopard, you know, cannot change his spots. The Zebra—Well, I can't change my stripes either, but no one ever thought it of sufficient interest to make a proverb of.—Philadelphia Record.

Good Nature May Be Costly.

"Don't look so glum, Pilkerton. Use cheery words. They cost nothing."

"Cost nothing! If I speak ten cheery words to my wife, she asks me for some money."

Caught Cold While Hunting a Burglar.

Mr. Wm. Thos. Lanorgan, provincial Constable at Chapleau, Ontario, says: "I caught a severe cold while hunting a burglar in the forest swamp last fall. Hearing of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, I tried it, and after using two small bottles, I was completely cured." This remedy is intended especially for coughs and colds. It will loosen and relieve a severe cold in less time than by any other treatment and is a favorite wherever its superior excellence has become known. For sale by L. S. Simmons.

Whose Key Unlocked the Drawer?

Here is a true story told by a doctor. This doctor had a patient, a brother physician, who was ill of a disease no one has ever cured yet. The sick man realized that his case was hopeless and he knew, too, that before he died he would go through horrible convulsions. He begged his friend to kill him in order to spare his wife the sight of anything so unforgettably hideous, and the physician, bound by his code of ethics, refused. The sick man begged his wife to let him have his revolver, but she refused. The physician locked the drawer of the bureau in which it lay and gave the wife the key. Two days later the sick man shot himself, and the revolver he used was his own. He had unlocked the drawer.

"We found the key in it," said the doctor. "It was not the one I had given to the wife. I took it, and when I had a chance I went quietly into the room occupied by the man's mother. The key exactly fitted the lock of her bureau. That's all I know, except that the mother came out of the house with her bonnet and cloak on two minutes before her son shot himself."—Washington Post.

Look out for that "rainy day!"

It comes sooner or later for so many—we can't tell to-day who may want on the morrow.

Prepare now while you are able for any misfortune that may overtake you. Don't run any risks.

Here is something that will help you provide for the rainy day—an investment that carries with it unusual benefits and proves its value from the minute you buy the stock.

Smith's Cash Store is well and favorably known all over the West. Its reputation is of the best and in volume of business it is making tremendous strides forward every year. Some five years ago the stock was selling for $5.00 a share. Today the price is $10.00 a share. These figures demonstrate what a thriving institution is this biggest Mail Order House on the Pacific Coast.

Each share of stock is guaranteed to earn 6 per cent a year. But the greatest benefit is derived by the stockholder from the discounts given to the holders of five or more shares of stock. You can buy anything to eat, use or wear at the same price the goods would cost your local dealers. We call them "Owner's Prices."

Suppose you buy goods that altogether cost $50 at our wholesale rate. If you are a stockholder you get a discount amounting to $2.50, and your bill is only $47.50. The saving you will make in one year in addition to the earnings will in all probability more than cover the investment.

Year after year you will be effecting big savings. And should hard times knock at your door—and you must not be too sure that something of that sort will not happen—think what it will mean to you to be able to buy everything at cost prices. It might be the very thing that would help you to survive the period of distress.

We are increasing the amount of our capital stock. We are telling you about the stock because we think you ought to invest for your own sake. You couldn't buy stock in any other concern that would pay you so well.

It will not be long before the price of the stock is advanced. You know that means there are not many days remaining in which you can take advantage of this great offer.

For your convenience we are printing a coupon which you ought to fill out—it does not obligate you in any way. Send it at once.
